Commentary

Global real estate had a strong month, with the index returning +5.2% on a local currency basis and +2.3% on an AUD basis. This is despite a tough start to the month for the sector (and for general equities). The Fund returned net +3.2% in August, outperforming the index by 93bps.

A series of soft US jobs data in the lead up to the start of August drove renewed fears of an impending US recession. This combined with worries around a potential unwind of the Yen carry-trade culminated in a global market sell-off starting on August the 5th. On that day, the Nikkei225 fell ~15% intraday, closing the day down 12.4% (largest fall since 1987), the S&P500 fell 3.0% and the Global Real Estate Index (AUD) fell 2.1%. Some pundits at the time were calling for an emergency US Fed rate cut, with market pricing an implied 60% chance of a 25bps rate cut within a week.

However, fears quickly blew over as subsequent jobs and PMI data were stronger than expected. The S&P500 recovered all its losses and posted an overall gain of over 2% for the month. As we discuss in this month's Investment Perspectives, it is our view that the probability of a US recession is low. With recession fears allayed, the imminent US rate cut cycle resumed driving returns – Fed Chair Powell stated in a recent speech that the 'time has come' for a shift to rate cuts.

Reporting season concluded this month and the sector overall fared well. In the US, 66% of REITs reported earnings ahead of market expectations. A stand-out was the healthcare real estate sector, with Ventas and Welltower in the US and Chartwell in Canada all reporting double digit growth in senior housing same-store NOI as well as continued growth in occupancy levels.

It is worth highlighting that many North American healthcare names have meaningfully outperformed in the year before the latest round of results – proving again that successful investing is about anticipating the theme, rather than waiting for it and jumping in with the crowd.

The Fund has a meaningful exposure to senior housing and healthcare and has done so for several years.

Some interesting real estate related news released during the month included:

- Scentre Group announces a tender offer to buy back up to US$550m of its outstanding 2025 subordinated notes. Scentre intends to fund the repurchase through the issuance of new A$ denominated subordinated notes. This will provide earnings accretion due to interest expense savings.
- LEG Immobilien (German Apartments) issued a EUR500m convertible bond maturing Sep-2030. Conversion price of EUR117.5/share represents a ~37% premium to unaffected price. The deal positions LEG to have >EUR1.1bn cash by year end and they are now fully covered for all 2025 debt expiries.
- US Housing starts fell to 1.24m (seasonally adjusted annualised rate) in July, below consensus forecasts of 1.34m. Housing starts are now at the lowest level since mid-2019, excluding the covid-pandemic. The decline reflected a sharp pull-back in single-family starts which fell by 14.1%. Starts in the Multifamily segment increased for the second consecutive month, up 14.5%.

Top contributors to returns for the month came from positions in US Healthcare and European Storage. The top detractors for the month were from positions in US Industrial and US Data Centre.
